The mare put her head down and shivered all over with relief..That night, over supper at the waterfront inn, she asked with unusual timidity in her voice, "Do I have great gifts?". "Destroy us? Destroy this hill? The trees there?" She looked down to a grove of trees not far from the hill. "Maybe Segoy who made them could unmake them. Maybe the earth will destroy herself. Maybe she'll destroy herself through our hands, in the end. But not through yours. False king, false dragon, false man, don't come to Roke Knoll until you know the ground you stand on." She made one gesture of her hand, downward to the earth..The art begins and ends in naming. But that's not your gift. You have a poor memory for words. "But - but Arren was King Lebannen -".When she finished in the dairy and went to the house, the new fellow, Hawk, was squatting on the hearth, skillfully making up the fire. The curer was in his room asleep. She looked in, and closed the door.. "I don't know," said the Doorkeeper.. "When did a woman last ask to enter the School?". "Magic won't die on Roke," said Veil. "On Roke all spells are strong. So said Ath himself. And you have walked under the trees... Our job must be to keep that strength. Hide it, yes. Hoard it, as a young dragon hoards up its fire. And share it. But only here. Pass it on, one to the next, here, where it's safe, and where the great robbers and killers would least look for it, since no one here is of any account. And one day the dragon will come into its strength. If it takes a thousand years..."often doesn't know what he's doing, do you see..".She glanced back at the land then. It was the only time he ever saw her look back..running his hands over the wood and talking to it, that he couldn't see why they made a fuss over.among those silent, sunlit roads and fields and in the kitchens by the hearths where housewives.only imagination can restore the least glimmer of it. If we lie about the past, forcing it to tell.They listened to him, not agreeing, not denying, but accepting his despair.
