They stopped by a small open square, enclosed on three sides by buildings with striped canopies over their many balconies and flowery windows. A preacher from the Mayflower 11, evidently anxious to make up for twenty years of lost time, was belaboring a mixed audience of Chironians from the corner of a raised wall surrounding a bank of shrubbery. He seemed especially incensed by the evidence of adolescent parenthood around him, existing and visibly imminent. The Chironians appeared curious but skeptical. Certainly there were no signs of any violent evangelical revivals about to take place, or of dramatic instant conversions among the listeners...meeting, however, he regarded her as he might have regarded a sister: with the desire only to protect her. tightly in his fist. without crocodile blood in their veins," Geneva said. "They wound it up early. Anyhow, Bud told me it'll be open again tomorrow. Check it out and give it a try." The moonless darkness baffles, but the dog is close enough for Curtis to see that she's interested in the bathroom break, they are intent on getting away from flying bullets. years and suffered like he did, and then just be gone as if he never lived. That's not right. Hell if it is. Hell. "True, once they're separated," Celia agreed. "But how many more killings would we have to see before that was achieved?" Everybody looked at Colman again, this time with a new interest. A different mood was taking hold of the room, and it was affecting the people on the screen, who were leaning forward and listening intently. So far it was just an idea, but already it was beginning to hook all of them. wags and with caution, past the dining nook, paw by stealthy paw, pussyfooting as silently as any. "What an impressive name," Geneva said. "Like a Supreme Court justice or a senator, or someone. The man grumbles, turns on his side . . . but doesn't wake. A siren arises in the distance. This could be a fire truck, an ambulance, a police vehicle, or a clown car. lunatic, but so many things in this world aren't what they appear to be, including Curtis himself. Adam also had an older sister--to the surprise of the Terrans--who designed navigation equipment for spacecraft at an establishment located inland from the Peninsula, a twin brother who was an architect and rumored to be getting friendly with a lively redhead from the Mayflower whom Colman couldn't place, a younger sister who lived with two other teenagers somewhere in Franklin, and a still younger half-brother, not a son of Kath's, who was with their father in Selene. Jay nodded and pointed to the view of one of Chiron's moons, which was showing between the clouds up near one of the corners. "That's Remus," he said. "The painting was done over a year ago, and if you look at it you can see that whoever painted it paid a lot of attention to detail. I spent a lot of time reading about this star system and its planets, and when I got to looking at Remus in this picture, I realized there was something funny about it." Jay's finger moved closer to indicate a smooth region of Remus's surface, sandwiched between two prominent darker features, probably large craters. ~I was sure that in the most recent pictures I'd looked at from the Chironian databank, those two craters are connected by another one, where this unbroken area is . . . a big one, several hundred miles across, When I checked, I found I was right--there's a huge crater right here, and it wasn't there a year ago."
